Department of Communication Studies

Mission
The Department of Communication Studies (http://www.apu.edu/clas/communication) offers undergraduate degree programs in communication studies, journalism, and public relations, and supports the university General Education program through both required and elective course offerings. As part of the journalism program, the department supports a student newspaper, magazine, student television news program, and a campus radio station. Additionally, the department engages a nationally-competitive forensics team and a national honor society, Lambda Pi Eta. Emphasis is placed on the application of Christian truth and values to the study of communication theories and processes, consideration of ethical issues, and the mastery of current scholarship in each field.

Department Overview
The Department of Communication Studies offers three distinct Bachelor of Arts degrees: communication studies, journalism, and public relations.

The communication studies major (http://catalog.apu.edu/undergraduate/liberal-arts-sciences/communication-studies/communication-studies-major) offers an in-depth study of communication in various contexts, including but not limited to classes in rhetoric, argumentation, interpersonal, small group, organizational communication, conflict management, intercultural communication, and family communication.

The journalism major (http://catalog.apu.edu/undergraduate/liberal-arts-sciences/communication-studies/journalism-major) offers an in-depth study of journalism, cultivating practical experience in writing, reporting, editing, and publication production and management. Three concentrations are offered: News and Storytelling, Media Studies, and Sports Journalism.

The public relations (http://catalog.apu.edu/undergraduate/liberal-arts-sciences/communication-studies/public-relations-ba) major offers an in-depth study of the principles and practices of effective public relations across corporate and not-for-profit organizations, including the entertainment and sports industries.

The department also offers minors in communication studies (http://catalog.apu.edu/undergraduate/liberal-arts-sciences/communication-studies/communications-studies-minor), journalism (http://catalog.apu.edu/undergraduate/liberal-arts-sciences/communication-studies/journalism-minor), and public relations (http://catalog.apu.edu/undergraduate/liberal-arts-sciences/communication-studies/public-relations-minor).

Department GPA Requirements
To graduate, communication studies, journalism, and public relations students must maintain a cumulative grade-point average of 2.0 or higher in their major coursework.

Any student participating in Department of Communication Studies cocurricular activities, forensics, or media production must maintain a 2.5 cumulative grade-point average.

COMM 111, Public Communication, 3 Units
This course offers practical instruction in how to speak effectively and introduces the basic principles underlying effective communication. Topics range from the study of theoretical models of interpersonal and public communication to the fundamental skills of research, organization, and delivery of informative and persuasive discourse. Meets the General Education Requirement: Oral Communication.
COMM 116, Intercollegiate Forensics, 1-3 Units
Students participate in directed activity in debate and/or individual events, including platform speaking, limited preparation events, and the oral interpretation of literature. Participation in intercollegiate speech competition is required. May be repeated for up to 6 units, but only 3 count toward the major.

COMM 200, Introduction to Mass Communication, 3 Units
This course provides a study of the forms, content, environments, and strategies of the mass media (e.g., newspaper, magazine, radio, television, film, etc.). Emphasis is given to an historical and critical understanding of media structures and functions.

COMM 201, Introduction to Communication Studies, 3 Units
This introductory course exposes students to the main areas of scholarship and research within the field of communication. Students are introduced to the fundamental issues and concerns involved in the study of rhetorical and communication theory and given an orientation necessary for future study. Emphasis is placed on approaches to communications employed within the field, current developments in scholarship, and the development of proper research techniques.

COMM 203, Communication Theory, 3 Units
Basic theories and concepts associated with human communication are the focus of this course, which reviews research and theoretical positions on interpersonal, intrapersonal, small-group, nonverbal, and intercultural communication.

COMM 211, Professional Communication, 3 Units
Improves students' professional communication skills and develops an understanding of vocational calling necessary to establish a professional identity. The course provides the structural skills necessary to deliver effective professional presentations using innovative technologies in a variety of contexts.
Prerequisite: COMM 111

COMM 230, Small Group Communication, 3 Units
Provides the student with both a theoretical and an active acquaintance with group participation and leadership. It examines the antecedents, processes, and outcomes of group communication, including group development, leadership emergence, norms and roles, performance, cohesion, conflict, and decision making.
Prerequisite: COMM 201

COMM 260, Intercultural Communication, 3 Units
This course explores the dynamic processes of establishing a relationship between culturally diverse individuals. Respecting divergent cultural patterns is promoted, but not at the expense of salient spiritual, moral, and ethical issues involved in intercultural communication. Meets the General Education Requirement: Intercultural Competence.

COMM 300, Research Methods in Communication, 3 Units
This course introduces students to the research process. It examines how research is planned and designed, explores both quantitative and qualitative methods, introduces students to processes of data collection and analysis, and gives them experience in conducting original research.
Prerequisite: COMM 203

COMM 302, Rhetorical Theory, 3 Units
Provides a survey of historical and contemporary rhetorical theories beginning with the Greek classical period. Emphasis is on forms of critical and theoretical analysis of human discourse in modern society.
Prerequisite: COMM 201

COMM 305, Writing 3: Writing for Communication, 3 Units
This course prepares students to participate in the discourse community of communication studies. It transitions students from classroom writing tasks, genres, and audiences to those that will be expected of them once they enter an academic field or profession. This includes researching in the Information Age, synthesizing information from sources, upholding communications industries’ standards, and building identities as communication specialists. Portfolio-based assignments focus on writing for advanced study, strategic communication, media, businesses, online platforms, and professional contexts. Meets the General Education Requirement: Writing 3: Writing in the Disciplines.
Prerequisite: Writing 2

COMM 315, Intercollegiate Forensics, 1-3 Units
Students participate in directed activity in debate and/or individual events, including platform speaking, limited prep events, and the oral interpretation of literature. Participation in intercollegiate speech competition is required. May be repeated for up to 6 units, but only 3 count toward the major.

COMM 325, Gender Communication, 3 Units
This course explores the role of gender in communication processes. Students examine both the personal and social nature of gender, including how it shapes communication and how communication creates, reproduces, sustains, and sometimes challenges and changes the meaning of gender. Attention is given to how gender impacts, and is impacted by, friendships, family relationships, education, media, and organizations.
COMM 335, Leadership Communication, 3 Units
This course provides students with opportunities to understand theoretical, empirical, and practical aspects of leadership communication by taking a distinct communication approach to leadership studies. Topics including leadership and followership communication styles and practices; various leadership theories and perspectives; power and influence; team/group leadership; organizational, crisis, and public leadership; diversity; ethics in leadership, and leadership development are examined.
Prerequisite: Jr/Sr Standing

COMM 340, Advanced Argumentation, 3 Units
This course analyzes argumentation techniques used in both formal and informal settings. Its focus includes understanding and defining argument, discovering argument in the personal community, the social community, and nontraditional places.
Prerequisite: COMM 115 or Instructor's consent

COMM 341, Media Criticism and Theory, 3 Units
This course examines the origins and development of film criticism and theory through a close analysis of selected writings. Specialized critical approaches such as genre, auteur, feminist, and Marxist will be framed by a cultural studies approach giving an understanding of film as an expression of both art and popular culture.

COMM 345, Nonverbal Communication, 3 Units
This course introduces students to nonverbal communication as a vital factor in human communication by examining the research, practice, and principles underlying nonverbal behavior. The course focuses on several components of nonverbal communication, including touch, proximity, vocal quality, eye contact, facial expression, personal appearance, gesturing, and gender and culture differences in nonverbal behavior. Application of the theories of nonverbal communication is made to workplace, social, and family settings.

COMM 360, Studies in Popular Culture, 3 Units
This course carefully examines popular cultural forms, institutions, rituals, artifacts, icons, communication practices, thought patterns, worldviews, value systems, and ideologies possibly created thereby. Topics range from the private and public experiences of popular culture in movies, television, and recordings to fast food, automobiles, and blue jeans, along with their relationship to wider cultural contexts and Christian faith.

COMM 420, Conflict Management, 3 Units
Students examine the process of communication within conflict situations. The course analyzes conflict on intrapersonal, interpersonal, group, and organizational levels.
Prerequisite: Junior or Senior Standing

COMM 425, Interpersonal Communication Processes, 3 Units
Offers an in-depth analysis of dyadic interaction, highlighting initial and developing relational sequences. Topics such as self-disclosure, intimacy, trust, and interpersonal influence are discussed, as well as current developments in interpersonal communication theory and research.
Prerequisite: COMM 300 and junior or senior standing

COMM 430, Organizational Communication, 3 Units
Examines the nature and process of communication in and constitutive of modern organizations. Explores the pragmatic implications of organizational communication theories as they relate to understanding, shaping, and participating in organizations.
Prerequisites: COMM 300 and junior or senior standing

COMM 435, Family Communication, 3 Units
Offers an in-depth analysis of various family units and family functioning. Topics include family theories (i.e., systems theory, relational dialectics, and communication privacy management), specific family relationship types (i.e., sibling relationships, blended families, adoption, and parent-child relationships), and communication patterns in families, with emphasis on current development in family communication theory and research.
Prerequisite: Jr/Sr Standing

COMM 440, Persuasion and Attitude Change, 3 Units
Examines the basic theories and techniques of influence, providing the student with a critical awareness of the nature, function, and scope of persuasion. The class covers such concepts as attitudes, credibility, resistance to persuasion, ethics, logic and argumentation, and propaganda.
Prerequisite: Junior or Senior Standing

COMM 490, Communication Internship, 1-3 Units
This course provides an opportunity for directed experiences in applying the principles and skills of communication theory while performing specific tasks. Internships are arranged individually by the participants and supervised directly by the instructor. Tasks may include career training and group leadership. Enrollment is contingent upon department approval. Three units must be taken for the communication major; an additional 3 units may be taken for credit toward graduation. *Enrollment in this class also fulfills the General Education Integrative and Applied Learning requirement as long as students complete a total of 120 internship hours. Units may be spread out over different internship placements in different semesters in the following increments: one (1) unit requires 40 hours, two (2) units require 80 hours, and three (3) units require 120 hours. Students choosing to earn units at more than one internship site will be required to complete additional paperwork for each placement. Meets the General Education Requirement: Integrative and Applied Learning.
Prerequisite: Junior or Senior Standing
COMM 491, Classroom Practicum, 1-3 Units
This course gives students practical experience in classroom teaching and tutoring. Students assist in classroom duties as well as complete assignments related to the development of a communication perspective. Three units must be taken for the communication major; an additional 3 units may be taken for credit toward graduation.

COMM 491H, Classroom Practicum- Honors, 1-3 Units
This course gives students practical experience in classroom teaching and tutoring. Students assist in classroom duties as well as complete assignments related to the development of a communication perspective. Three units must be taken for the communication major; an additional three units may be taken for credit toward graduation.

COMM 495, Special Topics, 3 Units
This course allows occasional offerings of diverse topics in journalism not covered by regular department courses. Emerging skills needs, contemporary issues, and trends in the field of journalism, or special interests of faculty and students, may be targeted under this category. Subject areas such as literary journalism, precision journalism, community journalism, politics, economics, environment, and propaganda are some topics that may be taught in this course. Course may be repeated, but only 3 units count toward major elective credit; additional units may be taken for credit toward graduation.

Prerequisite: JOUR 210

COMM 496, Senior Seminar: Ethics in Human Communication, 3 Units
This seminar in ethics and communication helps students understand the ethical dilemmas faced by communicators in a variety of situations. Through the examination of various communication theories, students come to understand the powerful ways in which communication defines, creates, maintains, and/or changes social reality and understand the ethical implications involved in each of these communication functions.

Prerequisites: Senior standing, completion of the majority of the units required for God's Word and the Christian Response, and upper-division writing intensive course.

COMM 497, Readings, 1-4 Units
Consists of a program of study concentrating on assigned readings, discussions, and writing arranged between and designed by a student of upper-division standing and a full-time professor. An independent study fee is assessed for each enrollment in this class.

COMM 498, Directed Research, 1-3 Units
This course provides instruction in research design and technique, and gives students experience in the research process. The 1-unit expectation encompasses no fewer than 30 hours of work with accompanying reading, log, writing, and seminar presentation within the department or in a university research symposium. No more than 1 unit may be used to fulfill preparatory readings requirement. An independent study fee is assessed for each enrollment in this class.

COMM 499, Thesis/Project, 1-4 Units
This is a senior-level, "capstone" type of independent study/research experience involving the student in a unique project with a sophisticated level of research, synthesis, analysis, and communication. The 1-unit expectation encompasses no fewer than 30 hours of work with accompanying readings, log, instructor discussions, and writing of summary analysis and conclusions. The thesis or project may result in formal thesis, published article, electronic media, annotated recital, or artistic creation of a material form. No more than 1 unit may be used to fulfill preparatory readings requirement. An independent study fee is assessed for each enrollment in this class.

Prerequisites: upper-division writing intensive course or instructor's permission; and junior or senior standing

JOUR 101, Journalism Skills, 1 Unit
This weeklong intensive workshop allows students to learn skills essential to basic journalistic news writing and reporting in a variety of media, with particular focus on print, broadcast and online venues.

JOUR 210, News Writing and Reporting, 3 Units
This course allows students to practice the basics of newspaper reporting. The focus is on techniques of researching and writing hard news stories and features.

JOUR 220, Press Theory and Democracy, 3 Units
Explores history, philosophy, and contemporary social issues through intensive reading such as race and gender, as they serve to help students understand the roles journalism can play in a democratic society. Meets the General Education Requirement: Civic Knowledge and Engagement.

JOUR 230, Digital News Gathering, 3 Units
This course emphasizes the writing and production of news as it relates to digital platforms. Students in this course learn to record audio and video for electronic news stories utilizing the specialized tools necessary including digital voice recorders, digital video cameras and non-linear editing systems. Students learn how to use the various types of equipment in the field while producing news stories for broadcast on television and the Web.
JOUR 261, Audio Broadcasting, 3 Units
This course is designed to teach students the basics of audio broadcasting for radio, podcasts, and the internet, including writing for audio broadcasting ("writing to read"), basic audio recording interviewing techniques, voice performance, microphone theory and practice, audio recording theory and practice, audio postproduction theory and practice, and incorporating Christian faith and practice in audio art and journalism. Students learn about and use current digital audio recording devices and production programs to record and produce their projects.
Prerequisite: JOUR 230

JOUR 300, Editing, 3 Units
This course examines the question, "What does it mean to be an editor?" Emphasis is placed on copy editing, news and editorial writing, and layout and design. The course also examines some ethical and legal issues editors face.
Prerequisites: JOUR 210 or Instructor's consent

JOUR 305, Media Law and Ethics, 3 Units
This advanced course analyzes past and recent interpretations of freedom of expression as argued in state and federal courts and other forums. Issues of concern include libel, right to privacy, information gathering, protection of sources and state secrets, the FCC and FTC, obscenity, and propaganda. The struggle of the press to maintain its role in this democratic society is emphasized.
Prerequisites: COMM 200 or JOUR 210

JOUR 315, Multimedia Publishing and Design, 3 Units
This skills course teaches the journalism major how to create, edit, and design publications using software created for that purpose. As media convergence trends impact the industry, requiring reporters, editors, and designers to create visual stories and skillfully coordinate text and art, future media specialists must focus on these strengths. This course enables students to adapt stories for a variety of media, including the Internet, and develops the computer networking skills necessary for efficient publication production in today's market. Note: As this is an applied computer course wherein students develop journalistic publications, previous computer expertise is not sufficient to opt out of the course.

JOUR 325, Newspaper Workshop, 1 Unit
This workshop allows students with earned credit in newspaper courses to develop skills and contribute to the production of the student newspaper. This course may be repeated three times for credit toward the journalism major and up to six times total.
Prerequisites: JOUR 210 or Instructor's consent

JOUR 326, Magazine Workshop, 1 Unit
This course allows students to develop writing and reporting skills and to contribute to the production of a student magazine. As a workshop, the instructional format is one of mentoring rather than formal instruction. Students compile a portfolio of published feature articles, page design, or photography for final evaluation.
Prerequisite: JOUR 210

JOUR 327, Radio Workshop, 1 Unit
Students achieve proficiency in selection, writing, and broadcasting of newscasts using Associate Press newswire and the AP Broadcasting Manual.
Prerequisite: JOUR 210

JOUR 328, Television Workshop, 1 Unit
Focuses on developing basic technical competencies in television news production. Students create a weekly news program called Capture and work in a variety of capacities to create content.
Prerequisite: JOUR 230

JOUR 335, Journalism Research Methods, 3 Units
This course allows students to explore the research process. It examines how research is planned and designed for journalism and media studies. It introduces students to both quantitative and qualitative methods, with an emphasis on the qualitative nature of media research. The class also explores how research data is used in journalistic storytelling and prepares students to do that.
Prerequisite: COMM 215

JOUR 345, Sports Communication and Public Relations, 3 Units
This course introduces examples of real-world functions and strategies of sports communications and public relations as it relates to delivering information from a sports organization through media. Students develop an understanding of the role of public relations in professional and college sports, including best practices in communicating with media to reach a target audience. Students learn the various aspects of event management, including the compilation and dissemination of information and statistics through publications, press conferences, and storytelling. Students also compare and contrast communication strategies and the organizational structures of professional and college sports organizations that guide them, and learn how to capitalize on PR opportunities and handle a PR crisis.

JOUR 376, Television Journalism, 3 Units
This course emphasizes the writing and production of broadcast television news programs. It also forces students to critically analyze what is being produced in broadcast journalism today. Special attention is given to digital news gathering (DNG) techniques, including advanced video operations, broadcast reporting skills, and non-linear video editing fundamentals as they relate to the reporting and writing process.
Prerequisite: JOUR 230
JOUR 410, Global Journalism and Media Systems, 3 Units
This course combines practical journalistic skills in reporting world events with critical discourse on global media systems. In an increasingly globalized world, journalism and media studies students need knowledge of the forces driving world news and world events, understanding of how media function across cultures, and the ability to accurately gather and present foreign news. In this course, students examine the ethos of international newsgathering and reporting; identify the opportunities, challenges, and constraints media function under across cultures; compare media systems and philosophies; analyze differences in media professionalism; and cultivate competencies needed to help connect the world through effective reporting, analysis, and interpretation of international events.
Prerequisite: JOUR 210

JOUR 415, Communicating Sports History and Economics, 3 Units
This course gives students an in-depth look at the history of sports in America as well as the economic structure that supports it, enabling them to effectively communicate the key issues that make up the professional and amateur sports we see in the media. Special attention is given to Major League Baseball, the National Football League, and the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which directly affect college competition.
Prerequisite: JOUR 210

JOUR 420, Entertainment, Sports and Specialty Reporting, 3 Units
This specialty journalism course capitalizes on the unique location of Azusa Pacific University at a juncture of professional entertainment and sports. The course emphasizes an understanding of the entertainment and sports industries and focuses on reporting and writing techniques that prepare students to cover these and specialty areas overall as news beats. Students analyze the writing and reporting styles of journalistic media and cover the topics themselves.
Prerequisite: JOUR 210

JOUR 425, Opinion and Editorial Writing, 3 Units
This course explores two purposes of journalism: providing a public forum for discussion and amplifying the current conversations in communities. Focusing on editorial pages, this course trains students to increase community conversations and amplify hot topics. The course emphasizes the fact-finding skills vital to op-ed pieces and focuses on writing structures and techniques that engage news consumers and cause them to think about issues more deeply and creatively. Beyond editorials, the course also analyzes the construction of various kinds of personal columns and reviews.
Prerequisite: JOUR 210

JOUR 430, Public Affairs Reporting, 3 Units
This advanced journalism course examines the reporting of public institutions and programs that affect and impact the market area of the media organization. The class covers local, state, and national government; schools; tax-supported organizations; the military; and the programs affiliated with these institutions.
Prerequisite: JOUR 210

JOUR 435, Media Entrepreneurship and Economics, 3 Units
This course focuses on examining how innovation shapes the future of media, and teaches ways to create news, information, and other media enterprises to succeed in the Digital Revolution. The course also examines the impact of digital technologies on media in terms of production and consumption. Business and distribution models in media are surveyed, and students learn the fundamentals of formulating a media business, including writing a business plan.
Prerequisite: JOUR 210 AND JOUR 230

JOUR 440, Religion and the Media, 3 Units
This seminar in religion and media examines the role of faith in public life and culture. Included in the course is an examination of media that routinely deal with faith and values.
Prerequisite: JOUR 210

JOUR 445, Media Theory and Applications, 3 Units
This course examines theories of communication media from micro, cognitive-behavioral to macro, sociological and ecological approaches. It looks at evolutions in media theory and their applications in media research and practice. It analyzes theories of the media from both historical chronological and spatial systemic dimensions. It critiques the assumptions and foundations of key media theories, enables students identify real world applications of, and use the theories in conducting media research. The course will cover established and emerging media theories in light of changing the continuously evolving mediascape. Participants in this course will gain critical media literacy and analytical skills.
Prerequisite: COMM 200

JOUR 460, Advanced Public Relations, 3 Units
Requires students to apply knowledge and skills to a real-life public relations project. Students must think critically about public relations practices and develop innovative solutions to public relations problems while working for real clients with real issues.
Prerequisite: JOUR 250
JOUR 495, Special Topics, 3 Units
This course allows occasional offerings of diverse topics in journalism not covered by regular department courses. Emerging skills needs, contemporary issues, and trends in the field of journalism, or special interests of faculty and students, may be targeted under this category. Subject areas such as literary journalism, precision journalism, community journalism, politics, economics, environment, and propaganda are some topics that may be taught in this course. Course may be repeated, but only 3 units count toward major elective credit; additional units may be taken for credit toward graduation.

PUBR 250, Introduction to Public Relations, 3 Units
Applies communication principles and theories to the field of public relations. Emphasis is placed on developing successful approaches to establishing and maintaining mutual understanding between organizations and their publics through successful two-way communication.

PUBR 300, Public Relations Management, 3 Units
This course analyzes in depth the practice of public relations applied to the various stakeholders of an organization. Students will learn the main theories of leadership and management applied to public relations agencies and communication department of public and private organization. Students will learn about the internal structure of the public relations agency, its functioning, and departments along with a broad view of the public relations industry. Students will learn about different forms of public relations such as media relations, crisis communication, employee relations, internal relations, event planning, social media, and corporate responsibility.
Prerequisite: PUBR 250

PUBR 315, Public Relations and Social Media, 3 Units
Public Relations and Social Media aims to explore the use of Public Relations strategies and techniques applied to social media platforms. Students will examine the different tools and techniques available for organizations to communicate with their different publics through the use of new technologies. Students in this course will learn through a hands-on approach to case studies and social media campaigns, as well as a detailed study of social media platforms, trends and communication theories applied to this new form of communication. A crucial element of the course is the design, development and implementation of a social media consultancy project for a non-profit.

PUBR 325, Public Relations Agency, 1 Unit
This workshop is aimed at providing students with a realistic approach to a daily life of a public relations practitioner. Structured as a workshop, students will experience a working environment that will prepare them for the professional world. This course will replicate the structure and organization of a public relations agency, where students will create a work environment producing public relations materials for a variety of clients. A key component of the course is the development of a portfolio of work samples.
Prerequisite: PUBR 250

PUBR 330, Public Relations Campaigns, 3 Units
This course analyzes and evaluates public relations campaigns and explores the design, creation, development and implementation of public relations campaigns across different fields where public relations practices take place (internal communication, media relations, crisis communication, social media, corporate responsibility). Students will become familiarized with the public relations process and will learn how to identify the main strategies of public relations by analyzing current campaigns. Also, students will produce a personal portfolio of writing samples of public relations products, such as press releases, op-eds, media kits, interviews, scripted interviews, product releases, brochures and online materials. Meets the General Education Requirement: Writing 3: Writing in the Disciplines.
Prerequisite: PUBR 250 and Writing 2

PUBR 420, Public Relations, Non-profits and Social Causes + Lab, 3 Units
Course instruction covers wide-ranging study and application for working and flourishing in communications for the non-profit sector. Learning skills need to prepare for this unique field include language nuance, effective story-telling, strategic networking, as well as an understanding of the similarities and differences existing between communication approaches used in the for-profit, government, and non-profit sectors. This course will also cover the particularities of faith-based non-profits.

PUBR 440, Public Relations and Entertainment + Lab, 3 Units
We live in one of the world’s largest media markets. This course will explore the entertainment industry and the public relations strategies and practices in the field. Students will learn about the structure of the entertainment industry, distribution channels, media relations and so forth. This course offers a very practical, hands-on workshop where an active professional offers students a series of case studies and challenges to be worked, discussed and solved in the classroom. Students will be exposed to the real life scenarios and will create a number of pieces for their professional portfolio.
Prerequisite: Junior or Senior Standing

PUBR 450, Public Relations International Experience, 3 Units
This course aims to explore the nature of international communication in a practical manner. This course will study the practice of social media, paying special attention to the creative process and industry trends. The course will be structured in two distinct parts, pre and post traveling. Before traveling, students will study the history, culture and socioeconomic context in order to be prepared for the places to be visited. Once abroad, we will meet with different communication agencies, social media startups and public relations professionals who will share their expertise on the topic. The practical outcome of the course will be the production of a video diary of the trip, where students will share their thoughts, reflections and lessons learned using one of the concepts previously discussed as the guideline for the visual narrative.
Prerequisite: Junior or Senior Standing
PUBR 495, Special Topics in Public Relations: Crisis Communication, 3 Units
This course studies the nature and origin of crisis and how organizations respond to them. Exploring in depth the connections between organizations, media and publics, this course reviews the industry’s best practice and the theoretical framework for crisis management. Relying heavily on recent and relevant case studies, students will discover the diverse strategies and techniques and tools used by organizations when faced with crisis situations. As a practical outcome of the course, students will design and develop a full-scale crisis communication plan for an organization.

PUBR 496, Public Relations Capstone, 3 Units
This is a senior-level, “capstone” course structured in two distinct parts. The first half of the course discusses and explores the ethical issues that public relations practitioners will deal in their everyday life. Using the Public Relations Society of America’s Code of Ethics, students will explore the ethical dimensions of the practice of public relations, and its intersection with a Christian worldview. The second half of the course covers more applied topics of professional readiness for students. As seniors prepare to enter the professional practice, this course will cover professional related topics such as vocation, resume preparation, industry knowledge, and portfolio preparation.
Prerequisite: Junior or Senior Standing
